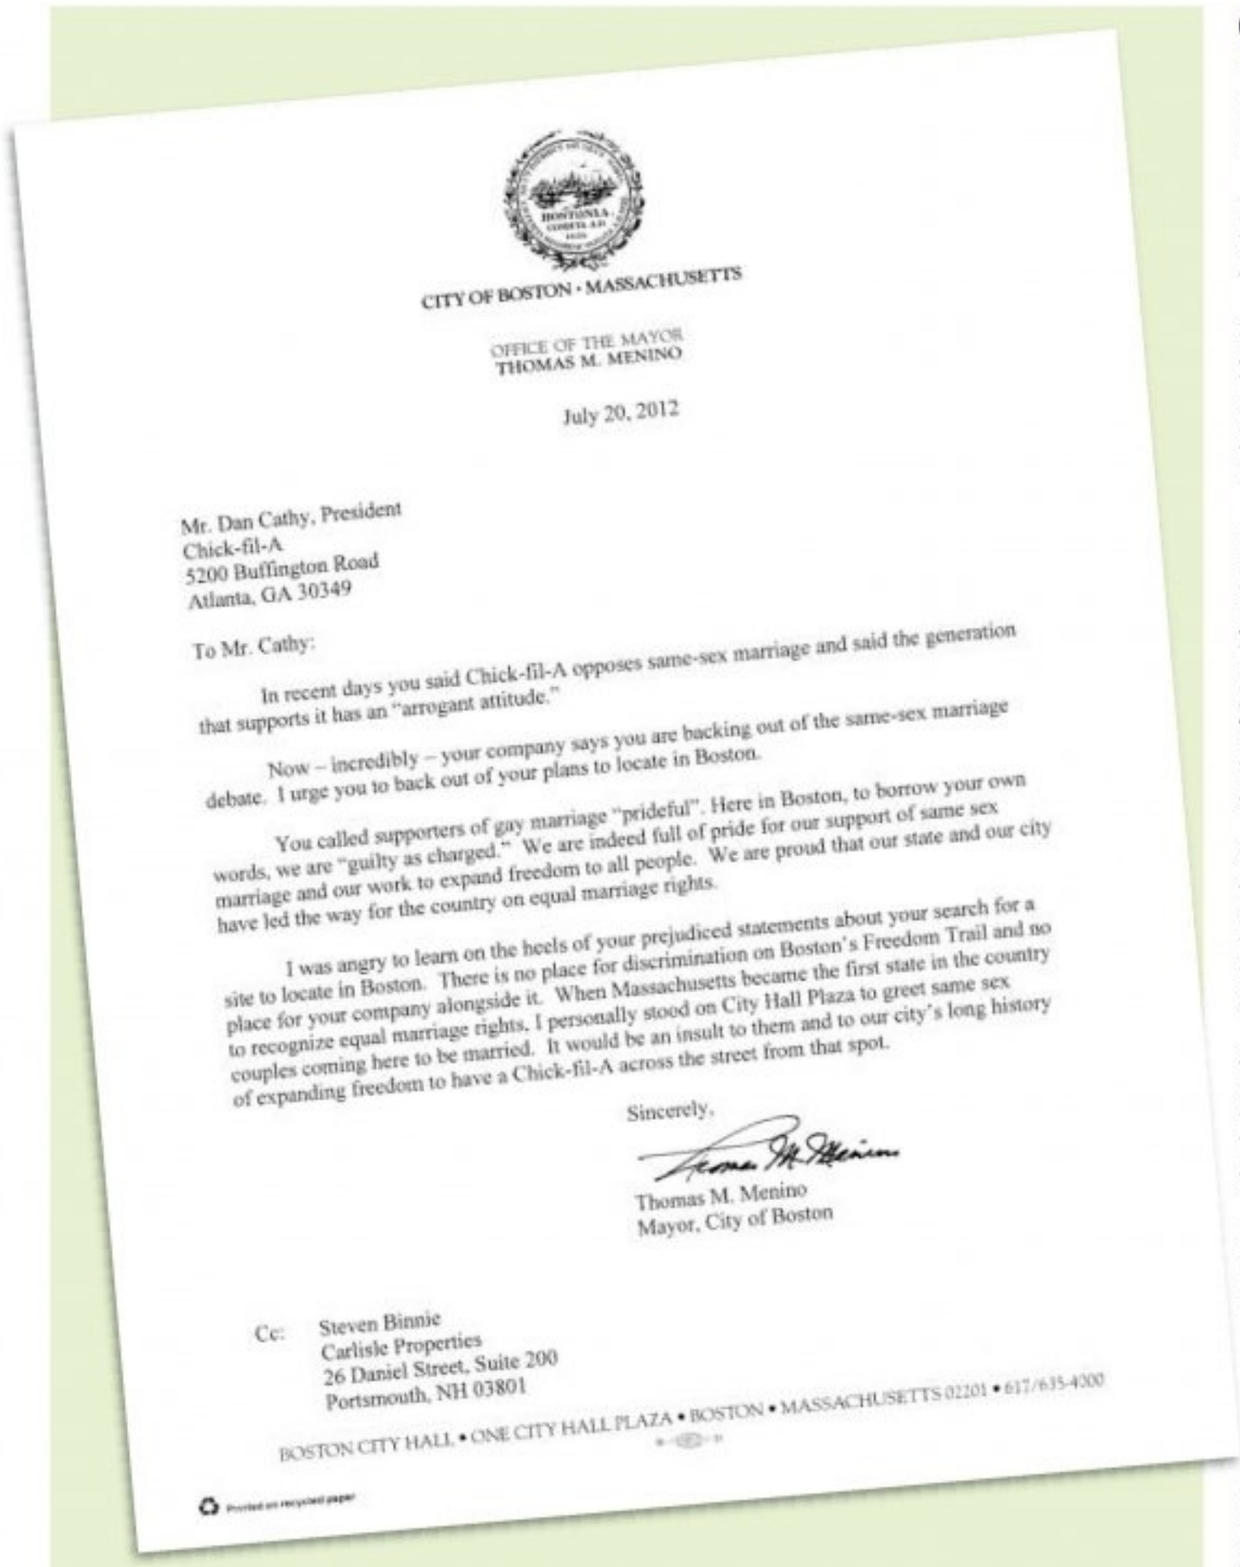
Mayor doesn't mince words to Chick-fil-A



CITY OF BOSTON • MASSACHUSETTS

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
THOMAS M. MENINO

July 20, 2012

Mr. Dan Cathy, President
Chick-fil-A
5200 Buffington Road
Atlanta, GA 30349

To Mr. Cathy:

In recent days you said Chick-fil-A opposes same-sex marriage and said the generation that supports it has an "arrogant attitude."

Now – incredibly – your company says you are backing out of the same-sex marriage debate. I urge you to back out of your plans to locate in Boston.

You called supporters of gay marriage "prideful". Here in Boston, to borrow your own words, we are "guilty as charged." We are indeed full of pride for our support of same sex marriage and our work to expand freedom to all people. We are proud that our state and our city have led the way for the country on equal marriage rights.

I was angry to learn on the heels of your prejudiced statements about your search for a site to locate in Boston. There is no place for discrimination on Boston's Freedom Trail and no place for your company alongside it. When Massachusetts became the first state in the country to recognize equal marriage rights, I personally stood on City Hall Plaza to greet same sex couples coming here to be married. It would be an insult to them and to our city's long history of expanding freedom to have a Chick-fil-A across the street from that spot.

Sincerely,

Thomas M. Menino

Menino pens scathing letter to head of chicken chain Anti-gay marriage, Hub search spark anger

Mayor Thomas Menino is putting the chicken where his anger is.

Menino, after recently making comments to the Herald about his not wanting Atlanta-based Chick-fil-A in Boston, penned a letter to the chicken chain's president expressing his anger with the company.

"In recent days you said Chick-fil-A opposes same-sex marriage and said the generation that supports it has an 'arrogant attitude,'" Menino wrote in the letter dated July 20. "Now — incredibly — your company says you are backing out of the same-sex marriage debate. I urge you to back out of your plans to locate in Boston."

Menino goes on and writes that the city is "full of pride for our support of same sex marriage" and that he was "angry" to learn of the chain's attempt to come to Boston after President Dan Cathy's comments.

Cathy came under fire recently when he made comments to the Baptist Press that the company believes in "the biblical definition of a family unit."

The company's stance on same-sex marriage led to it being uninvited from opening in Northeastern University's student center earlier this year after students voted against allowing it there.

Fallout from those comments reached beyond Boston when the Jim Hensen Company, famous for its Muppet characters, ended its partnership with the chain.

The chain has also been criticized for donating nearly $2 million to anti-gay groups in 2009.

After Menino's comments last week, the company posted a statement on its Facebook page. Chick-fil-A said the company's culture is "to treat every person with honor, dignity and respect — regardless of their belief, race, creed, sexual orientation or gender."

"Going forward, our intent is to leave the policy debate over same-sex marriage to the government and political arena," the statement said.

Facebook controversy

The company was accused yesterday of creating a Facebook account to pose as a teenage girl and defend the company. The teen used her Facebook account to post on the company's page.

However, in a statement on its Facebook page, the company denied the accusation. "Hey fans, thanks for being supportive. There is a lot of misinformation out there. The latest is we have been accused of impersonating a teenager with a fake Facebook profile. We want you to know we would never do anything like that and this claim is 100% false," the company said.

Whole Foods coming to South End

BOSTON. A new development at the site of the former Boston Herald building in the South End will include the city's largest Whole Foods to date.

The 50,000-square-foot flagship Whole Foods will be the chain's largest and most complete in Boston, according to the developers of the site.

The grocery store will be the retail anchor for the planned development Ink Block South End, which includes plans for 471 luxury apartments.

Construction on the Harrison Avenue development is expected to begin next year and the store is expected to be completed in 2014. METRO

Correction officer's fatal crash probed

BILLERICA. A corrections officer working an overnight shift crashed a cruiser yesterday morning in Billerica and died.

Edward "Teddy" Dillon III, 27, of Lowell, crashed on Treble Cove Road about 4:30 a.m., authorities said.

Dillon, a corrections officer with the Middlesex Sheriff's Office since 2008, was working the midnight to 8 a.m. shift at the Middlesex House of Correction in Billerica. His job included routine perimeter checks of the facility and nearby sheriff's office property.

The cause of the crash was not immediately clear.

Boston's love of bikes keeps on climbing

With Hubway poised to turn 1 year old on Saturday, officials announced this week that the bike share will pump up its fleet to 1,000 bikes by August.

That means a lot more bikes on the roads; so can the city handle the surge?

"No doubt about it," said Kristopher Carter, interim director of Boston Bicycle. "I think the mayor has done a lot of work over the last few years to prepare the city. We are nowhere near capacity."

To accommodate the increase, Hubway will also add 30 new stations in Cambridge, Brookline and Somerville, additions that Carter said bikers have clamored for.

"It is important that we're providing connections across the river into other towns — this is public transit," he said.

With a party Tuesday celebrating Hubway's first birthday, and a summer-long exhibit showcasing the impact of biking on urban areas like Boston, it's easy to see that Bostonians love their bikes.

Some, however, question whether the city's roads can accommodate more cyclists. The city has added 50 miles of bike lanes in past four years, Carter said, and there are plans to add between 15 and 20 more miles of path this year.

For some, it's still not enough: "It takes me 1.25 hours to drive 17 miles to work...boston needs more bikes and bike paths,"@johngf tweeted yesterday.

Memory Pill Does for the Brain What Prescription Glasses Do for the Eyes, Claims US Surgeon General Candidate

Remarkable changes observed, helps restore up to 15 years of lost memory power in as little as 30 days!

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON –

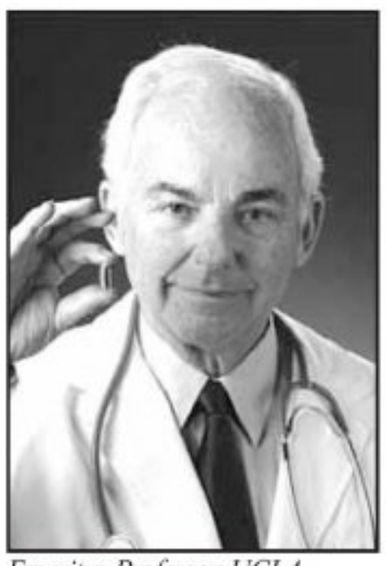
Help is on the way for those who routinely lose their car keys, forget to call people back, or misplace their TV remote control.

Just like a good pair of glasses can make blurry vision, sharp and crystal-clear, there's a new, doctor-recommended memory pill that can do the same thing for your brain, sharpening your memory and mental powers, and making that slow-thinking, sluggish brain as sharp as a tack.

In controlled research studies, the prescription-free formula, known as Procera AVH® has been shown to increase memory, mood, and mental clarity, but it does much more than that.

Time Travel for Your Brain?

If you have ever dreamed of traveling back in time, this drug-free compound may be the next best thing.



Emeritus Professor, UCLA Medical School, Robert Heller, MD, uses and recommends a drug-free method to increase memory, mental focus and concentration.

During research trials at the prestigious Brain Sciences Institute, clinical researchers witnessed a remarkable transformation in study participants' brains.

Over a period of a few weeks, scientists observed the formula "biochemically coaxing" aging brains to function more youthfully, helping restore the speed, memory abilities and mental powers enjoyed as far back as 15 birthdays ago.

Younger Brain in 30 Days?

If the results of this randomized, double-blind, placebo controlled study, published in JANA, a leading scientific journal, are to be believed, it is entirely possible that you can get your new, younger-functioning brain in as little as 30 days.

This is old news for Robert Heller, MD, Emeritus Professor UCLA Medical School, who uses and recommends the formula

"It's not a drug," says Dr. Heller, "it's a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become a sharper, quicker, and healthier brain."

Wake Up Call for Tired Brains

For years, Dr. Heller looked for an effective solution to patients' complaints about mind and memory.

"I searched for a remedy or treatment that could help my patients, even friends and family, regain the memory and mental sharpness we all seem to lose with age. I am quite happy to now recommend Procera AVH as it gives the brain much needed support against free radicals, inflammation and improve the decline in neurotransmitters, and blood flow and oxygen."

"It's like reading an eye chart with the right pair of glasses instead of an old pair of lenses. Everything comes into focus, your brain is more crisp, more focused, clearer, and sharper."

Dr. Con Stough at the Brain Sciences Institute concurs, "It's a fairly unique, fast-acting process that pumps the brain full of more energy, improves blood circulation to the brain and increases the key neurotransmitters that are responsible for cognitive functioning."

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study on what may be the world's first truly effective memory pill was conducted at this university research facility.

Elizabeth K. of Rochester, New York experienced a night-and-day difference in her mind and memory.

At the age of 54, her memory was declining at an "alarming rate."

"I was about to consult a neurologist when I read about Procera AVH." Elizabeth decided to give it a try.

"It took about a month for the memory benefit to kick in. Six months later, even my husband was impressed with my improved memory. And I am very happy with my renewed mental clarity and focus!"

A 'Bonus' Effect?

Elizabeth was pleasantly surprised with one of the formula's 'bonus effects.'

"Within a week I felt a wonderful change in my mood. It was such an unexpected bonus," smiles Elizabeth.

Pharmacist Gene Steiner, Pharm.D, was relocating to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate's mastery of pharmacy law.

Dr. Steiner took Procera AVH daily for two weeks prior to the test, and passed with flying colors. "The recall I experienced was near fantastic," says Steiner.

Curiosity piqued, Dr. Steiner did his own research to learn more about the formula

He read about a US cognitive researcher who had taken a new approach to treating memory loss, addressing the "energy crisis" that occurs naturally in human brains around the age of 40-50.

Author, researcher, preeminent brain expert, and lead formulator for Procera AVH, Joshua Reynolds, explains, "One-third of your brainpower may be lost by the age of 40, and 50 percent may be lost by the age of 50!"

Half-Blind... and Can't See It

"If you were to lose half your vision, essentially go half-blind, you would surely notice it," says Reynolds.

"But the gradual loss of mental acuity and brainpower over many years may be too subtle for people to notice."

Days before seeing a neurologist for her "alarming rate" of memory loss, 54-year-old Elizabeth K., Rochester, New York, discovered a natural memory pill that changed her life.

This explains why many Procera AVH users seem surprised at the effects.

Mark S. in Alego, Texas, was worried about being at his best during sales calls.

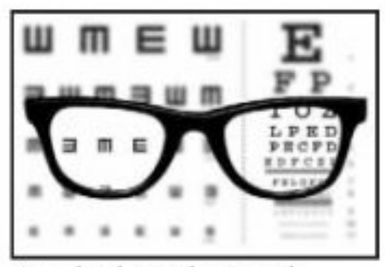
"I really needed something to help with mental clarity, focus and memory. I have to be at my best when I meet with clients."

Shortly after he started taking Procera AVH, Mark was amazed at how sharp and mentally focused he was during his appointments.

"It was definitely a noticeable difference. I was very pleased with Procera AVH and happy to know it will help me stay at my best."

Neural Pathways, Energized!

Three clinically validated brain energy nutrients in Reynolds' formula have been shown to "light up aging brains like a Christmas tree."



Age-related vision loss is easily corrected with glasses. A novel drug-free compound has been found to help restore age-related memory loss and poor mental focus in as little as 30 days.

Procera revitalizes tired sluggish brains cells with a fresh supply of oxygen and key vital nutrients. Plus, it helps restore depleted neurotransmitters, which increase and enhance alertness, concentration, and memory.

"We included acetyl-l-carnitine, a natural modified amino acid with a proven record of memory enhancement," says Reynolds.

"It's the same brain nutrient found in cold-water fish, but you'd have to eat over 20 servings of fish to get what's in one daily dose of Procera AVH."

The formula also contains vinpocetine, a substance that helps deliver increased oxygen and glucose to your brain.

"Vinpocetine helps increase circulation in the brain, so your brain feels more alive, like a breath of fresh air," says Reynolds.

The third ingredient is huperzine, a potent plant chemical shown to improve learning and memory at all ages.

"Students can do better in school when they take it," adds Reynolds. "And the US government has been studying huperzine's neuroprotective powers against the brain-damaging effects of pesticides in food."

Selwyn Howell credits Reynolds' memory pill with bolstering his confidence.

"It helped me speak out more than I used to. I am growing more confident every day."

Carey S. reports, "I feel so much more focused and with the new energy I'm now ready to tackle the things I've been putting off for years!"

Accused killer no easy fit for mass murderer profile

Unless James Holmes chooses to say why he went on the lethal shooting spree he is accused of, the analyses offered by forensic psychiatrists, based on their study of mass murders, may be as close as we get.

From what is known of the attack and his life so far, experts say Holmes was probably not suffering from as serious a mental illness as Jared Loughner, who was diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia after killing six people in Tucson, Ariz., in 2011.

"People want to believe that someone who does something like this must be floridly psychotic," said Louis Schlesinger, professor of forensic psychology at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York, who has studied mass killers since the 1970s. "They think, 'Ah, he's mentally ill; now I understand.' It makes people feel they and people they know would never behave this way."

The scarier prospect is that Holmes's psychological illness was more common, less severe and not easily detectable.

As forensic psychiatry experts try to figure out from afar what is wrong with Holmes, they are focusing on three details of the shooting: The targets were strangers to the killer, not colleagues or acquaintances; the shooter did not commit suicide or invite his own death at the hands of police; and Holmes warned authorities about his booby-trapped apartment before the explosives killed anyone.

REUTERS

▶ Experts are exploring the mind of James Holmes from afar.

Warning signs hard to detect

NEW YORK. Based on mass murderers he has studied, criminologist James Alan Fox says: "[There's] a consistent profile in which someone has a history of frustration and failure despite promise and aptitude. But they also have a very weak support system: They don't have [anyone] to put their thoughts in perspective."

"There are thousands and thousands of people who fit that pattern and do not kill anyone," Fox said. "You can't use it to predict who will become [a mass murderer]. These are not red flags, but yellow ones. They become red only in retrospect, when the blood flows."

REUTERS

Survival is seen as a clue

NEW YORK. Another clue to Holmes's mental state is that he clearly intended to survive the massacre, wearing body armor during the attack and then surrendering to authorities.

In contrast, say experts, most of the mass killers they call "pseudocommandos" — those who kill in public, plan meticulously and are armed to the teeth — expect to die in their rampage, noted Dr. James Knoll, a forensic psychiatrist at SUNY Upstate Medical University in Syracuse, in a 2010 study. Virginia Tech's Seung-Hui Cho killed himself, as did the two teenagers who fatally shot 13 people at Colorado's Columbine High School in April 1999.

"That [Holmes] didn't is an indication that he was different in psychological terms than the others we've studied," said Levin. REUTERS

Newsweek will eventually shift to publish online

NEW YORK. Newsweek will eventually transition to an online publication, owner IAC/InterActiveCorp said yesterday, marking the beginning of the end for the money-losing magazine's 79-year run as a print weekly.

IAC Chairman Barry Diller made the announcement during a quarterly conference call, saying the New York-based company aims to curb investments in the business. Newsweek is projected to lose as much as $22 million this year, according to a person with direct knowledge of the matter. Still, Diller stopped short of saying the magazine would undergo a "total" shift online. BLOOMBERG

New home sales tumble, but upward trend stays intact

WASHINGTON. New home sales recorded their biggest drop in more than a year in June and prices resumed their downward trend, dealing a setback for the budding housing market recovery.

Single-family home sales tumbled 8.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted 350,000-unit annual rate, the lowest rate in five months, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The drop in new home sales last month came on the heels of a decline in home resales during the same period. REUTERS

Apple stock drops on missed estimates after iPhone lull

Slowing growth

Apple said sales in the quarter ending in September would fall to about $34 billion and that profit would fall to $7.65 a share. That compares with predictions by analysts for sales of $38 billion and profit of $10.27 a share.

Apple Inc. fell after reporting iPhone sales that missed analysts' projections, underscoring the computer maker's reliance on demand for the smartphone.

The company sold 26 million iPhones in the fiscal third quarter, shy of the 28.4 million predicted by analysts surveyed by Bloomberg. That caused Apple to miss analysts' quarterly sales and profit estimates for the second time since 2003.

Customers delayed purchases of existing iPhone versions while awaiting the next model. Samsung Electronics Co. releases several designs a year to defend its lead in the $219.1 billion smartphone market. That raises the stakes for Apple Chief Executive Officer Tim Cook, who relies on a once-a-year upgrade of the device that makes up half of the company's sales.

MARIO TAMA/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Analysts are predicting a new iPhone will be released by October.

"Pressure is mounting," said Michael Obuchowski, a portfolio manager at North Shore Asset Management LLC, an owner of Apple shares. "Because everybody else has a much faster design cycle, Apple has to come up with a new phone that's competitive not just when it comes out, but will stay competitive for a long period of time. That's going to be increasingly difficult."

62.5%

Apple's iPad will account for 62.5 percent of tablet sales this year, according to the International Data Corporation.

Net income climbed 21 percent to $8.82 billion, or $9.32 a share, in the June period, Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple said yesterday. Sales rose 23 percent to $35 billion. Analysts had predicted profit of $10.37 a share on revenue of $37.2 billion, the average of estimates compiled by Bloomberg.

While Apple is outgrowing its closest technology-industry peers, the company's sales climbed at the slowest pace since mid-2009. BLOOMBERG

Stewart 'deeply sorry' about affair

GETTY IMAGES

▶ The danger of having an affair with the director of your blockbuster: There are plenty of photos for us to choose from.

We always blamed Kristen Stewart's ever-present red carpet pout on being camera-shy. Maybe a weird rash. Possibly a Spanx situation. But we never suspected that the problem was Robert Pattinson, her much more photogenic boyfriend and "Twilight" co-star.

It seems, however, that while Stewart's been parading around Hollywood with Pattinson, she's also been having a fling with Rupert Sanders, her married "Snow White and the Huntsman" director. Us Weekly has incriminating photographs of the two snuggled up in Los Angeles on July 17, just a few days before Stewart and Pattinson attended the Teen Choice Awards together.

Witnesses tell RadarOnline that Sanders, 41, and Stewart, 22, "were hardly able to keep their hands off one another" as they drove around L.A., stopping occasionally to make out in parking lots.

Kristen, what do you have to say for yourself?

"I'm deeply sorry for the hurt and embarrassment I've caused to those close to me and everyone this has affected," she said in a statement released yesterday. "This momentary indiscretion has jeopardized the most important thing in my life, the person I love and respect the most, Rob. I love him, I love him, I'm so sorry."

Kris, take it from us: Making creepy, inappropriate public appeals to Robert Pattinson in the gossip columns doesn't work. We've been trying for years, and he just doesn't bite.

Sanders' wife not warned

Not to be outdone, Sanders issued his own apology shortly after Stewart.

"I am utterly distraught about the pain I have caused my family," the director said in a statement. "My beautiful wife and heavenly children are all I have in this world. I love them with all my heart. I am praying that we can get through this together."

As for Sanders' wife, Liberty Ross, we doubt she's accepting the apology anytime soon. The British model seemed to learn about the affair along with everyone else yesterday, and proceeded to have a mini Twitter meltdown.

Before deactivating her account, she followed @UsWeekly and tweeted quotes from Marilyn Monroe and Maya Angelou, then signed off with a simple "Wow" — the 2012 equivalent of waking up to the "Love Actually" DVD menu in a puddle of Ben & Jerry's.

▶ Well, this is awkward.

Pattinson talks cheating

Robert Pattinson obviously won't be releasing a statement — he'll let some pretty young blonde do the talking next week. So for now, all we've got is his April chat in Vanity Fair, where he conveniently discussed affairs.

"There's a thing I've never got: That is, why do people cheat? I can understand the impulse," he said. "But not how you can keep two relationships going at the same time for long. I'm not the casual-affair kind of guy. If I choose to be with someone, it's because I really want it. When I have a relationship, I'm 100 percent into it."

Talking points

Undress me maybe?

Carly Rae Jepsen has reportedly reached out to police after having nude photos of herself stolen from her computer, according to TMZ. The "Call Me Maybe" singer's reps apparently received a tip about the hacking back in March and immediately reached out to Vancouver police, who are investigating. Police officials confirm to the site that an investigation is underway "in regards to a theft of electronic property belonging to Jepsen." The singer's reps did not respond to a request for comment.

'Modern Family' looking to increase household income

Cast members of the hit sitcom "Modern Family" have filed a lawsuit against 20th Century Fox TV to void their contracts after tense negotiations for the show's fourth season broke down, according to the Hollywood Reporter. Sofia Vergara, Ty Burrell, Julie Bowen, Jesse Tyler Ferguson and Eric Stonestreet initially filed the lawsuit, while co-star Ed O'Neill added his name as a plaintiff as a show of solidarity. The actors have rejected an offer of $150,000 per episode for Season 4, with increases each year leading to $325,000 should the show reach Season 9. They're reportedly looking for double that.

Rough start for Jackson and Kruger

Joshua Jackson and Diane Kruger have been dating happily for six years, but their relationship got off to a bumpy start, the "Fringe" star tells Us Weekly. "Our first date was a miserable one. I took her to an Italian restaurant, and there was some flower that was blooming. She was allergic to it so she sniffled and sneezed the entire time," Jackson remembers. "And when I get nervous, you might have noticed I talk a lot. So I just chewed her ear off for an hour and a half. It was amazing. I'm surprised she ever called back."

Community actor-vists

As photos emerged online Tuesday of Christian Bale visiting with victims of last week's mass shooting at a Colorado screening of "The Dark Knight Rises," we felt compelled to honor others in his profession who give back to their communities.

1. Mark Wahlberg is making headlines for his hilarious performance in "Ted," but the actor is also known for his annual golf tournament, which raises money for at-risk inner-city kids.

2. Not only a hero on the big screen, "The Amazing Spider-Man" himself, Andrew Garfield, is an ambassador for the Worldwide Orphans Foundation.

3. Charlie Sheen has pledged to donate 1 percent of the profits he makes from his new show "Anger Management" to the USO, an organization devoted to lifting the spirits of U.S. troops and their families. (We also kinda just wanted to show this photo of him presenting Slash with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame from earlier this month.)

4. "Magic Mike" star Channing Tatum kept his clothes on and performed alongside his wife for the 2012 Revlon Concert, which raised millions of dollars to help save the rainforest.

5. "Hunger Games" star Josh Hutcherson won the Choice Movie Sci-Fi/Fantasy Actor award earlier this week at the Teen Choice Awards, but he also caught people's attention with his contribution to the group Straight But Not Narrow, which promotes positive change among straight teens in the way they view gay peers.

6. Actress Charlize Theron just portrayed the evil witch in "Snow White and the Huntsman," but she's quite different in her role as the director of the Charlize Theron African Outreach Program, which helps to provide HIV/AIDS testing, education and more in South Africa.

7. What girl wouldn't love a day at the spa? That's why "Journey 2: The Mysterious Island" star Vanessa Hudgens lent a hand to teens from the Make-a-Wish Foundation who got a chance to relax and get treated to manicures. ESTHER PACHECO

When is it time to face your past?

"Mirror Mirror" star Lily Collins was seen recently in pictures with Jamie Campbell Bower, taken while filming a movie together in Canada. That's a change. We're used to seeing Lily in photos with Zac Efron. But rumor has it that Lily and Zac have now split. Celebrities get together and break up in front of the camera all the time. But these days you don't have to be a star to see your new love interest with an ex. With all the social media that comes into play today, it might be too easy to witness the relationship that came before yours. So what does this mean for your romantic future? And when, if ever, is it OK to talk about it?

In the old days, break-ups were much cleaner. Sure, there might be some old photos of an ex stuck in a box somewhere, but you would have to really snoop to find those. Now all you have to do is go to your new boyfriend or girlfriend's Facebook page.

First, if you are the one leaving those old photos up, it's time to take them down. You don't have to destroy them. Maybe you can just move them to a private file on your computer. If, however, you are the one left to see your new flame with his or her old one, the first thing I'd suggest is to talk about it. There is a chance your partner isn't aware the photos are up. If he or she leaves them there intentionally, don't become angry or try to force their removal. Instead, keep those pics in mind. Know that they're an indication that your new lover hasn't made a clean break. As your partner asks you to go further into a relationship, remember those images and hold back a little in an effort to protect yourself. Until he or she hits that delete button, the person won't be ready to fully move forward.

Celebrities like Lily and Jamie might not have control over the photos that end up in the magazines, but everyone has control over their Facebook pages.

Science of seduction

- Author David Perrett takes a deeper look at beauty and attraction
- Says personality and upbringing can influence what's attractive

It's simple to tell if a person is attractive, but what is it that makes someone so? Pointing out the traits that characterize beauty proves difficult, but David Perrett uses psychological studies and computer-generated faces to uncover the science of attraction in his book, "In Your Face."

"In the book I mentioned health, symmetry, sex typicality and youth," Perrett says. "But I do spend most chapters showing how despite these universals, beauty is still very much in the eye of the beholder because of our unique upbringing, our unique friends, our unique experiences in love and so on. And each of these builds in our minds a unique sense of what's attractive in faces."

We've all marveled at the couple that could be siblings and gotten the heebie jeebies when Freudian theories emerge. Perrett's book explains why we're attracted to individuals who resemble our parents and pinpoints the traits that make or break beauty.

He says that though we cannot change the face we're born with, that face can make us who we are.

"I think people's future behavior is being shaped by their face," Perrett says. "I'm a great believer in the feedback between the face and how the world treats us and therefore the creation of our own personality."

In your face

1. Whites of our eyes "Our highly mobile eyes are put to good use in social signaling. It's astonishing how much can be conveyed by a simple flick of the eyes." Angelina's leftward gaze is intriguing and complex.
2. Eyebrows "The signals we give out using our eyes are emphasized by eyebrows."
3. Exceptions to averageness "If there are faces that are naturally better than average, they must have something extra, and it should be possible to find out what that something is." (We can easily identify what part of Angelina's face makes her exceptionally beautiful.)
4. Femininity Angelia's high cheekbones help make her face strikingly feminine.
5. Healthy skin "Face scans reveal that people with more red in their face look healthier than people who have less red in their face." Angelina's face texture and color make her look radiant and healthy.

Love 'Community'? Don't expect to see more like it

▶ Crystal stars as Rizzo and Justin Kirk as Dr. George Coleman on "Animal Practice," NBC's attempt at drawing a broader audience.

CHRIS HASTON/NBC

At the Television Critics Association press tour, the chairman of NBC Entertainment said the network is shifting its focus to broad comedy

Can a monkey save NBC?

The network that routinely finishes last in ratings among the big four broadcast companies is in a state of transition, most obviously seen in its approach to comedy this fall. Where NBC has been a haven for critically loved, cult-hit sitcoms that don't draw massive amounts of viewers, the network is now introducing comedies starring a lab-coat wearing monkey ("Animal Practice") and babies raised by clueless, yet caring, dads ("Guys with Kids").

"We're going to transition with our comedy programming and ... try to broaden the audience and broaden what the network does," Robert Greenblatt, chairman of NBC Entertainment, told journalists gathered at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Wednesday. "Those Thursday comedies, which the critics love and we love, tend to be a bit more narrow than we'd ultimately like as we go forward."

Greenblatt was referring to shows like "Parks and Recreation," "30 Rock" and, more specifically, "Community," which featured an entire episode that played out in the style of an 8-bit video game last season. Though all three were renewed for next season, as of late "Community" has received little love from NBC, which fired the show's creator, ordered only 13 episodes and pushed the show back to Fridays.

"The reason that we did 13 episodes of that and a couple of our other shows is because we really wanted to get more comedies on the schedule ... which isn't to say we couldn't decide at some point to extend those seasons," Greenblatt said. "I would love nothing more than 'Community' to have a following on Friday and to be able to continue it."

The new crop

"We didn't sit down and say, 'Let's find some shows with babies and animals everywhere,' but we did buy into visions from creators that we felt were funny, specific, emotional and original," said Jennifer Salke, NBC president of entertainment.

Salke said NBC "wanted forever" to line up a series like "Animal Practice" that prominently featured furry friends in the storyline. Yet at the same time, she added, "you don't need big hijinks" to make a broad comedy work.

NBC may be onto something: Later in the day, during a party held for critics, the most popular, most photographed celebrity of the evening was Crystal — the capuchin monkey star of "Animal Practice."

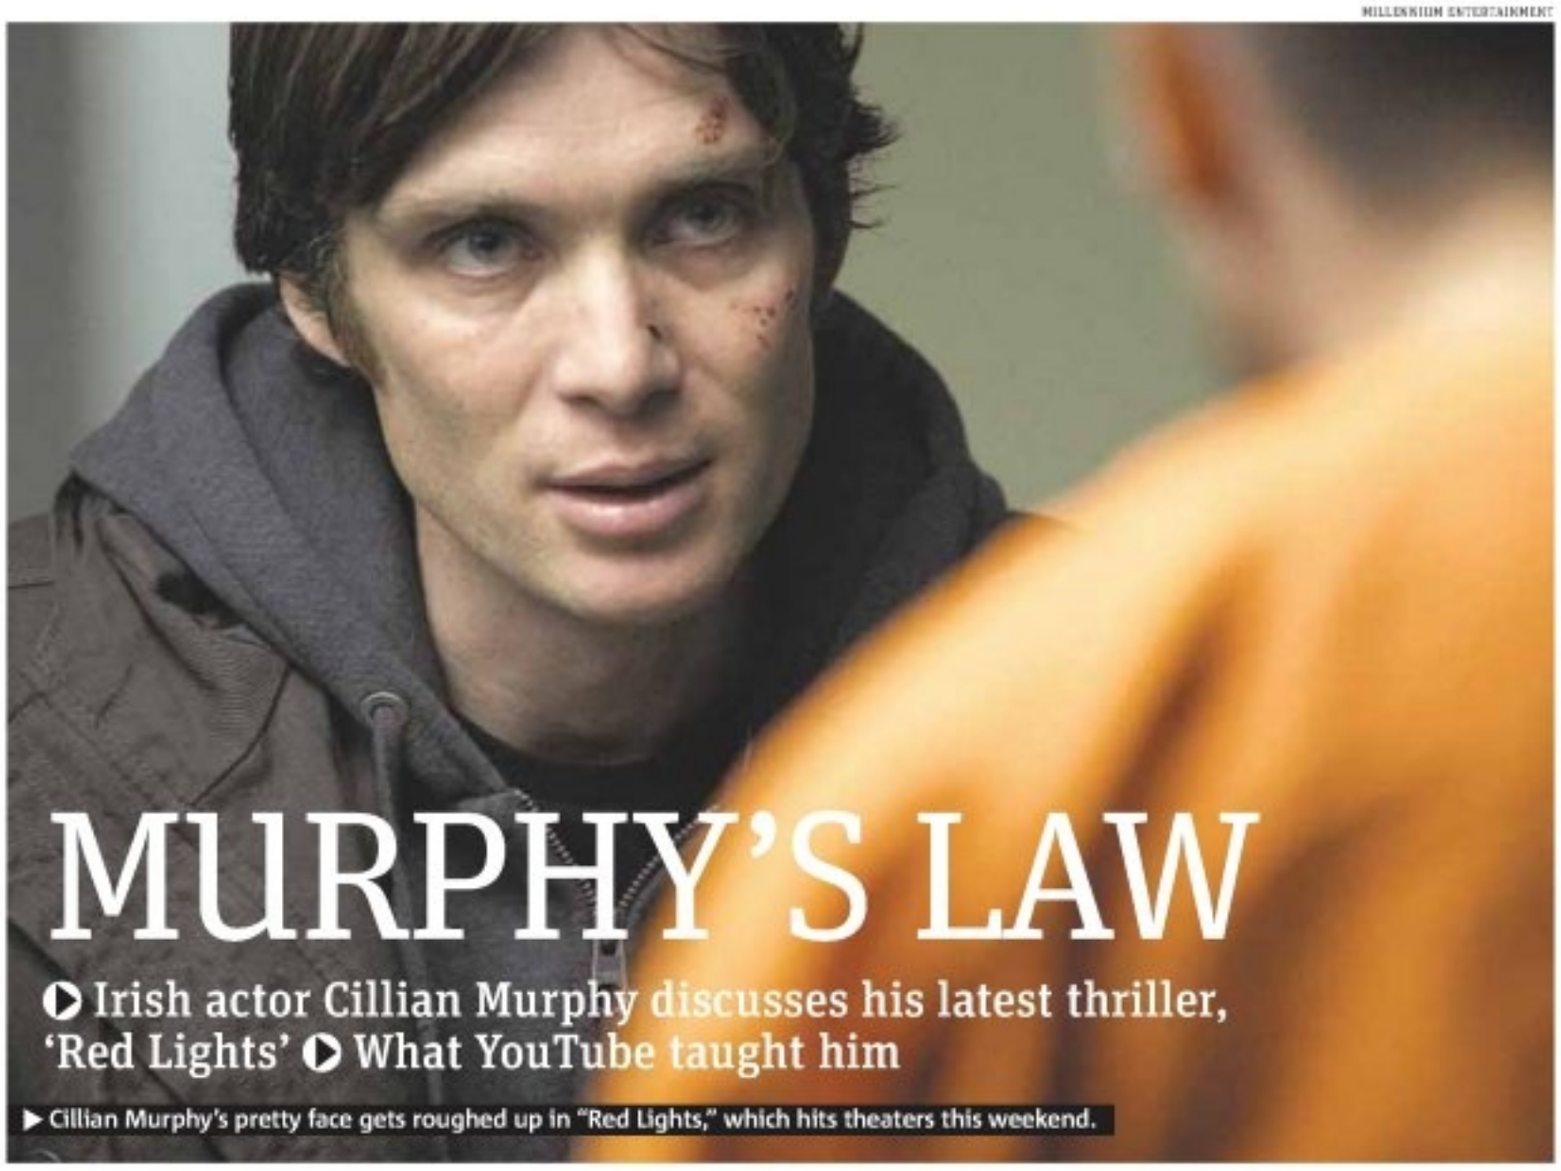
MILLENNIUM ENTERTAINMENT



MURPHY'S LAW

Irish actor Cillian Murphy discusses his latest thriller, 'Red Lights' What YouTube taught him

▶ Cillian Murphy's pretty face gets roughed up in "Red Lights," which hits theaters this weekend.

Cillian Murphy's crystal blue eyes, high cheekbones and warm Irish brogue are well enough to beguile even the casual fan. And though of late he's been known more for playing the baddie in the likes of "Inception" and "In Time," his latest turn, in Rodrigo Cortes' film "Red Lights," finds him back in good graces. He plays Tom Buckley, a scientist and paranormal investigator who goes toe to toe with a renowned psychic (played by, ahem, Robert De Niro) who Buckley suspects is a fraud.

Murphy's character, though out to disprove those who claim to be clairvoyant, has a fascination with magic and sleight of hand. That left Murphy with the task of mastering a few slick tricks like the old pull-the-quarter-out-of-your-ear that your grandpa used to do.

"If you have nothing else to do in your life except to make a coin roll over your fingers, you'll do it." MURPHY

"I just went and learned it and you know, you can learn anything off YouTube these days," Murphy says. "To get that fast, [it took] maybe two months. If you have nothing else to do in your life except to make a coin roll over your fingers, you'll do it."

Since Murphy has starred in his fair share of mind-benders, does the actor perhaps have a fascination with science fiction?

"Personally, I would be in the skeptic camp — which is not to say that I'm a cynic, but just that I have yet to see something that I believe is beyond our comprehension," he says regarding the paranormal. "I'm open and I'm curious, because you have to be if you're an actor. In my own life, I don't go to mediums or read horoscopes. I'm just kind of boringly rational, I'm afraid."

Though "The Dark Knight Rises" is now in theaters, during our chat Murphy kept mum about whether his character from "Batman Begins," the Scarecrow, makes a cameo in this third installment. But he did share high praise for director Christopher Nolan.

"It's very rare that you come across someone that talented," Murphy says. "I feel blessed to have worked with him."

Top 5 films

What you'll want to see this weekend

1 'The Watch' This comedy starts out with a simple enough premise: A group of bored, suburban dads band together to form a neighborhood watch group. But then, an alien invasion forces them to go from protecting the neighborhood to protecting the world.

2 'Step Up Revolution' The next installment in the "Step Up" series places Emily — the daughter of a wealthy businessman — in the heart of Miami, where she falls in love with a fellow dancer. Their harmony, however, is disturbed by Emily's father, who wants to develop the historic neighborhood, thereby displacing thousands of people.

3 'The Dark Knight Rises' In the finale to Christopher Nolan's trilogy, leading actor Christian Bale once again plays the stone-cold, shadowy figure known as Batman. This time, however, Bruce Wayne has exiled himself from his past as a hero — that is, until the city needs his protection from a new terrorist leader named Bane (Tom Hardy).

4 'Ice Age: Continental Drift' Ray Romano, Denis Leary and John Leguizamo re-team for the fourth installment of this series, which tracks prehistoric pals as they navigate the ocean with an iceberg for a ship.

5 'The Amazing Spider-Man' The verdict is "yay!" for "500 Days of Summer" director Marc Webb's reboot of the Spidey story, with Andrew Garfield taking up the Silly String and Emma Stone as the enchanting Gwen Stacy. METRO

Who could possibly support Paterno?

RE: "PATERNO NOW JUST ANY OTHER JOE": I just wanted to give kudos to Mr. Cataldi for not holding back on what he really thought about Joe Paterno and what he did to young people. No one in his or her right mind can continue to support a program or defend a person that allowed this tragedy to go unseen for so long. This was long overdue.

NCAA's Penn State sanctions go too far

Who does the NCAA think they're fooling? Fine Penn State $60 million? Check. No Bowl games for four years? Check. But voiding Penn State's victories between 1998 and 2011? Sorry, but you can't rewrite history. Those games were played. Does this mean all those teams Penn State beat didn't lose? Are they going to pretend those games never happened? Are they going to rewrite all those seasons' statistics? What a bunch of fools!

Aurora killer could be valuable resource

For [alleged] Aurora shooter James Holmes (and all murderers), I oppose the death penalty — it's too damn good! But so are prisons' libraries and weight rooms. Make him repay society via: 1) Work: Sort garbage for recycling, dig ditches for America's infrastructure, pick crops for America's farmers; 2) Tests: Test new drugs, treatments, surgical techniques, food additives (eliminate animal tests, PETA!); and 3) Donations: Give blood weekly, spinal fluid and marrow monthly, half his liver annually (it grows back), one kidney/lung/eye, etc. And when he dies, screw his will: Donate all organs and assets to those who need and deserve them more.

God's word peeks over in print

Thanks to the Metro for choosing to show folks praying on the cover page Monday and for printing Omar Branch's good news on Wednesday. When decay abounds in this world, God's love never fails, never gives up and never runs out! When we put aside our pride and call upon the name of the Lord, we are saved! It is an incredible thought and an even better experience. Faith is not about picking splinters out of our neighbor's eyes while ignoring the planks in our own. The blood of Jesus gives hope to the hopeless and restores life in the face of all depression and disappointment. For the rest of my days, hallelujah!

Politicians should serve everyone

Some politicians will do anything to get the win in November. It would be nice to see such rascals pay as much attention to serving the public. Why not try to serve others, even those who are without photo IDs, rather than disenfranchising them? Serving everyone —now there's a novel idea!

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Even though they might not be as substantial as you'd hoped, be appreciative of any gains that come your way. Anything is better than coming up empty-handed.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is a possibility that certain key elements might not be as advantageous as you first thought, so be smart and carefully screen all proposals that are presented to you.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. You might know what you want, but if you are clueless about how to transmit your ideas, you won't get anywhere. Try to do your best to lucidly communicate your brainstorms.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. The possibilities for achieving success look quite encouraging, but only if you do not involve yourself with persons who have no real interests in your aims. Stick with supporters only.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Honor all the commitments you've made, even if you have second thoughts. Though other alternatives may look promising, keeping your word will count the most.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Be sure to render full service for what you are being paid to do. If your performance fails to meet expectations, it could damage your reputation.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. When risky involvements are at stake, follow your instincts and don't go against your prudent judgment. If your inner voice warns you about taking a chance, heed it.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you do something kind for another, do it without making the recipient feel as if he or she is now obligated to you in some manner.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't hesitate to revive some of your long-standing plans if they didn't produce as hoped. Some kind of minor change might turn out to be just what the doctor ordered.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Spend any small surplus you might have on something you consider to be worthwhile, instead of frittering it away.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you feel what is being asked of you is unjust, don't make any concessions, even if you're under pressure. Make sure to take a firm position and stand up for what you believe.

LUKE.ONEIL@METRO.US

It used to be that when a restaurant opened it would have a grace period to find its groove and traditional reviewers would wait until things had settled to render a verdict. Now that we're all reviewers, firing off images of dishes to Instagram and chiming in on the glut of industry blogs, that's no longer the case. Complicating things for the Tip Tap Room, which opened last month, is that the establishment has been so busy from the jump that it's had to work out its issues on the fly. Nobody even had time to put together a cocktail list. I might quibble with that oversight, but when the beer (36 taps, 100 total) and whiskey list is so extensive, who wants a cocktail anyway?

There are reasons for the rush at this, the second reclamation project from chef Brian Poe, who previously turned the Rattlesnake from a bro-y slop hole into a surprisingly decent place to eat. For starters, the Beacon Hill/Government Center neighborhood is a wasteland of quality, so neighbors are starved for something new.

"I do enjoy all the neighbors as far as the restaurants are concerned," Poe says. "But I think there's a need for, not high-end, but ... good food. That's what we're trying to do."

Poe is, in fact, doing interesting things with dishes that might get lesser attention elsewhere, like a potato, bacon and fried oyster appetizer finished with beer cheese sauce and pickled serrano pico, to name one beer-soaking bar snack. It's the type of food, largely focused on "tips" of swordfish, steak, chicken, lamb and specials like an ostrich dish, that's priced for a young, drinking-minding crowd.

What does it all mean? Who cares?

Inside Tip Tap, the open space is bright (a little too much) and boisterous (ditto), with large garage doors that open onto the busy Cambridge street. The good news is, the young crowd is availing themselves of the wide selection of quality brews, like the super bitter Green Flash IPA or the malty Belgium-brewed Scotch Silly ale. Whiskeys and tequilas are well-represented as well. I tried a Breaking and Entering bourbon from California's St. George Spirits, which starts out hot, but mellows into a warm caramel, and Rhode Island's Uprising Whiskey, distilled by a friend of Poe's, that almost drinks like a spicy tequila. This isn't a sophisticated chin-stroking bar where you'll have much room to contemplate the "meaning" of your drinks, but it's not supposed to be.

‘JOYOUS, VULNERABLE AND REAL’

▶ Adam Cohen wants you to wave goodbye to the idea that he sounds like his father, Leonard Cohen. That said, he does a great version of his dad’s “Bird on a Wire.”

Adam Cohen talks high fashion, low morale and renewed vigor
Singer has learned to change his attitude and luck by approaching his career ‘Like a Man’

Adam Cohen is a snappy dresser. The singer/songwriter (and son of Leonard Cohen) just finished a photo shoot for Elle Canada and recently did one for another fashion-oriented magazine, Dressed to Kill, which is based in his hometown of Montreal.

“I enjoy fine clothes, I have to admit,” he says.

So he’s not a jeans and T-shirt guy?

“I can be,” he says, “but I definitely gravitate to fine things: fine meals and clothing, fine shapes and sounds.”

Cohen’s love of finery seems a last vestige of vanity as he admits that his new record, “Like a Man,” is the result of a chastening emotional low. “Like A Man” follows three albums, including one with his band Low Millions, that left Cohen feeling only failure.

“I was disillusioned to the point that I was about to abandon the business right before this record,” he says. “I thought I was over. I felt that I had been given chance after chance, and record deal after record deal, and I’d blown it.”

That admission, however, pushed Cohen toward a new place and a new attitude.

“Whereas before, my records were filled with anguish, anxiety, insecurity and self-doubt, and had cost a fortune and ended up sounding eager and expensive, this one was to the contrary,” he reveals. “It was joyous, vulnerable and real. That explains why it’s the coming out party it is for me.”

The dads connection

Cohen calls his summer touring mate Rufus Wainwright his “good friend” and “brother-in-law.” (Cohen’s sister is the mother of Wainwright’s daughter).

However, Cohen advises that personal comparisons of these sons of famous musical fathers (Rufus’ dad is Loudon Wainwright III) are spurious: “There’s a misconception that anyone who has parents in the same business shares the entire palette. The truth is that Rufus’ relationship with his parents, or Sean Lennon’s relationship with his parents, etc., etc., are all different. And so is mine. There’s a misnomer that we’re all linked in permanent perfect symmetry. We’re actually not.”

We can’t quite understand why The Dø aren’t huge yet. But because they aren’t, you get to see them in a ridiculously intimate venue. These Frenchies play infectious pop songs that they pour all sorts of crazy and sometimes menacing (but always awesome) instruments all over. And their lyrics are so smart. Maybe that’s why they’re not huge yet. Regardless, the duo’s 2011 album, “Both Ways Open Jaws” was one of our favorites of last year, and we’re psyched to see them live in their first Stateside dates with that album. If the YouTube clips are any indication, Olivia Merilahti and Dan Levy have recruited a full band that is sounding really tight. ▶ Animal Kingdom, from left, bassist Hamish Crombie, Sauberlich and drummer Geoff Lea play a free show tonight at the BMH.

The order of Animal Kingdom

Singer Richard Sauberlich takes a closer look at 'The Looking Away'
How fans helped the British band with their latest album

British ambient alt-rockers Animal Kingdom derive their band name from two opposite sources: science and religion.

Singer, guitarist and pianist Richard Sauberlich says they were reading books like "The Naked Ape" and "The Human Zoo," both by Desmond Morris.

"He's an anthropologist who examines human behavior through the prism of animal behavior, really," says Sauberlich. "And at the same time, I saw this picture in a children's Bible of Noah, in the ark, obviously. ... And the two just came together, joined together in my head."

He says the two ideas made him realize something about the human condition.

"I don't think we're necessarily, as humans, separate from or above the animals in terms of our basic drives and motivations," he says.

Quoted

"It almost sounded like a lullaby with loads of people singing very subtly. There's a nice message to the lyric, [which is] reinforced by ... the fans believing in doing it."

RICHARD SAUBERLICH

This inclusive philosophy stands in stark contrast to the material on Animal Kingdom's sophomore album, "The Looking Away," where the main theme is one of detachment. On the album, humans are removed from their animal roots, as well from the tragedies of the world.

"I think it's something that we all do," Sauberlich says of the tendency toward tuning out bad news. "It takes an incredibly strong and brave character to stare at something that makes them uncomfortable 24/7, 365 [days] a year."

If there's one thing Animal Kingdom are not removed from, it's social media. While recording "The Looking Away," the band asked fans to record themselves singing a lyric that would be compiled together for the ending of the track "Straw Man." Although the fan-inspired version of the track didn't make the final cut, Sauberlich says that he was impressed by the response.

"It almost sounded like a lullaby with loads of people singing very subtly," Sauberlich says of the ending. "There's a nice message to the lyric, [which is] reinforced by ... the fans believing in doing it."

Band vs. food

Animal Kingdom also are active on Twitter. Sauberlich says that he and his fellow band members are big fans of the Travel Network's "Man v. Food," and have conversed over Twitter with Adam Richman, star and host of the show, on where the band can try ridiculous gastric challenges while they tour the U.S. for the first time this summer.

"Obviously, he does them as a one-man job. I think we're going to have to do it as a three-piece band on the challenge," Sauberlich says. "We might not make [it to our own concert] after it."

The ripe tomatoes on Aspire's roof garden have made their way to chef Greg Krol's kitchen to be roasted to top a browned sea scallop on a bed of succotash and crispy bacon. Krol also purees them to a fruity thick cream in a bisque that's paired with a mozzarella panini. They're sliced to layer with mozzarella and basil on top of a focaccia crouton to create a linear panzanella, or they're cut into chunks in a unique red and white quinoa and cucumber salad laced with lemon verbena and parsley. Yum!

Krol isn't the only chef making magic in Providence. XO Cafe's Simon Keating does his tricks with local seafood and strawberries. Striped bass is pan-roasted and sits in a light broth of summer carrots, tomatoes and zucchini, finished with a luscious tempura Beach Blonde oyster. Schartner Farm strawberries join late season rhubarb in a polenta crisp.

Newly opened The Grande's Sunday brunch is all free-range, local eggs. Chef Antonio Santino Franco's eggs benedict includes poached Baffoni Farm eggs with a delicate orange hollandaise and luscious duck and Yukon gold hash. The croque madame layers house-cured lean bacon, Gruyere, a perfect splash of tangy Dijon and a sunny-side up egg on top of big, fluffy sourdough.

Patriots' journey begins

Coming off Super Bowl loss, many picking Pats to return to big game ◗ Is this 2012 version worth the hype? ◗ All eyes will be on Lloyd, stud rookies throughout training camp

August is right around the corner, which means it's finally time to take that pigskin back out. The Patriots will officially do that today at Gillette when training camp starts, and there are more than a few storylines to watch:

1 THE LLOYD FACTOR
Last year the Pats shocked the NFL world by trading for both Albert Haynesworth and Chad Ochocinco. A year later, it's safe to say both of those trades were epic fails. Don't expect any major swaps this time around, as the Pats seem pretty set across the board. But there was a major acquisition at wide receiver for New England as it brought in Brandon Lloyd. Ochocinco had a tough time holding on to the ball early last offseason, and it was a sign of things to come. A lot of eyes will be on Lloyd in the next few weeks, as the Pats desperately hope he's the outside threat they're missing.

2 KEEP IT CLEAN, BOYS
Logan Mankins (knee), Brandon Spikes (knee) and Sebastian Vollmer (back) will all start camp on the Active/PUP list, according to ESPNBoston.com. Those three players all had offseason surgery and it's unclear when they'll be fully recovered. Mankins is the biggest question mark, as he played with a torn ACL in the Super Bowl. All three players are extremely important to the Pats' success, and their health will be monitored closely. Noticeably absent from the list is Rob Gronkowski, who hobbled through a sprained ankle in the Super Bowl and had offseason surgery.

DELIP VISHWANAT/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The Patriots hope Brandon Lloyd doesn't go the way of the brash receiver they signed last offseason.

3 WELCOME, ROOKIES
We know what Tom Brady can do. We know what Jerod Mayo can do. What we don't know is how the rookies, specifically the pair of first-round picks in Chandler Jones and Dont'a Hightower, will fare in their first pro training camp. Jones, a defensive end, and Hightower, a linebacker, are both extremely versatile players. Jones is already regarded in some circles as the steal of the draft, and head coach Bill Belichick has gone on record in comparing Hightower to Mayo and Mike Vrabel.

Pats release veteran back Joseph Addai

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Addai

One day before the Patriots opened up training camp they dispensed with any drama about whether Joseph Addai would be a contributor to the team.

The veteran running back was cut, reportedly after failing a physical.

Addai, drafted in the first round by longtime Patriots rival Indianapolis in 2006, was signed in May and was expected to provide leadership to a mostly nameless group in the team's backfield.

But injuries are nothing new for Addai, who has played in just 20 games over the past two seasons with hamstring injuries. He was held out of one organized team activity this offseason due to injury, but was expected to be ready for camp.

He'd worked with the young backs on the roster during OTAs.

The only running backs currently on the roster with any NFL experience are Stevan Ridley, Shane Vereen and Danny Woodhead. Those three combined for just 849 rushing yards and three touchdowns last season. METRO

On the bubble

A look at a few players who will have to scratch and claw to make this year's Patriots:

- Deion Branch: Tom Brady loves him, but at 32 years old, his skills are declining.
- Jermaine Cunningham: The defensive end hasn't lived up to his potential after the Pats drafted him in the second round out of Florida in 2010.
- Julian Edelman: Like, Branch Edelman has to win a numbers game. Don't forget that Jabar Gaffney was brought in as well.
- Ron Brace: It's a do-or-die camp for the defensive lineman out of Boston College.

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

QB BUCKET AS DEEP AS EVER

The NFL is now a full-fledged, two-hand-touch passing league, leading to jaw-dropping statistics through the air.

Last year, 12 quarterbacks averaged at least 250 passing yards per game. Four of those guys threw at least 39 touchdown passes. So we have to get a quarterback early in our fantasy draft this year, right? Wrong.

Position scarcity

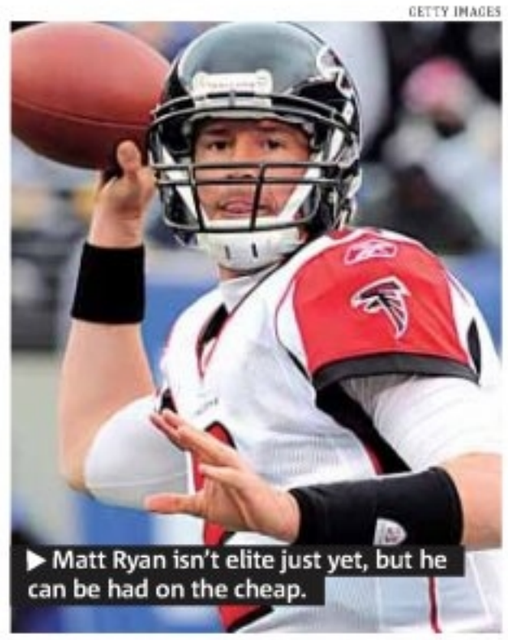
The concept of value-based drafting sounds complicated, but it's not. Since most leagues start just one quarterback, we only have to examine the projected difference between 10 to 12 quarterbacks. For example, Aaron Rodgers will go in the first round and Jay Cutler will go in the ninth. There's a big gap there, but not nearly as wide as the canyon between first-round RB Ray Rice and ninth-rounder Daniel Thomas.

Who to target?

OK, so you're sold on waiting to take your QB. The key to this strategy is finding someone to take later who can help.

Matt Ryan has a new offensive coordinator, a dominant wideout duo and a declining running game. Cutler and Brandon Marshall are reunited. Robert Griffin III brings world-class speed to the position. The Steelers will be relying heavily on Ben Roethlisberger's arm with Rashard Mendenhall (knee) sidelined. All are solid targets.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Matt Ryan isn't elite just yet, but he can be had on the cheap.

NFL news

Beanie dump

Beanie Wells doesn't have the greatest track record when it comes to injuries. So now that he's starting camp on the active/PUP list, there's reason for concern. He previously claimed he just had a minor knee scope six months ago.

Denarius Moore
WR, Raiders
Carson Palmer isn't afraid to chuck it deep to his No. 1 deep threat. Moore was grossly underrated coming out of college.

Rashad Jennings
RB, Jaguars
Maurice Jones-Drew sounds serious about a holdout. He also has a ton of wear on his tires. The talented Jennings is ready and waiting.

Kendall Wright
WR, Titans
Kenny Britt (knee, off-field) is in big trouble. Enter Wright, an explosive first-round pick that impressed during the spring.

Top MLB pickups

1 Jared Burton, RP, MIN — Burton and southpaw Glen Perkins are sharing save chances for now, but that won't last. Managers shy away from lefty closers.

2 Josh Rutledge, SS, COL — Troy Tulowitzki (groin) isn't close and Marco Scutaro is on the trade block. Rutledge, a flashy prospect, has nice speed and regular playing time.

3 Francisco Cordero, RP, HOU — With Brett Myers traded, Cordero is the new closer. Despite blowing his first save chance, he figures to get some leash with the gig.

NFL news

Matt Hasselbeck is listed as the No. 1 QB on the Titans' initial depth chart. But Jake Locker's progression should be swift. Watch closely.

"Miracle Fat Burner In A Bottle" - Dr. Oz

Science Uncovers Fat Burning Effect In Raspberry Ketones

In recent studies, scientists have found a link between Raspberry Ketones and weight loss. The ketones are the primary compound for the aroma in the widely loved fruit. By increasing the body's level of adiponectin and norepinephrine, it raises the body's metabolism causing significant fat loss.

SimplePure Nutrition Introduces Pay Per Pound Program

With the exception of TV's Dr. Oz declaring Raspberry Ketones the "miracle fat burner in a bottle" there has been limited publicity on the recent discovery.
